

GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN: ARTAllison Schulnik

Echoing through Schulnik's debut at the gallery is Scott Walker's 1969 ballad "It's Raining Today," which provides the swooning soundtrack for her sixth video, "Mound." (Previously, the Los Angeles-based artist collaborated with the band Grizzly Bear.) The brief but intricately choreographed Danse Macabre of handmade puppets recalls the work of the eccentric Claymation master Bruce Bickford at his free-form best. The rest of the space is given over to small, eerie ceramic sculptures and paintings of figures, flower arrangements, and creatures, slathered in impasto so thick that it could almost be mistaken for cake frosting. Through Dec. 17.

Through December 17

ZIEHERSMITH

516 W. 20th St., New York, N.Y.

212-229-1088

ziehersmith.com

