6. See Sculpture

523 West 24th Street, through April 19.

Six never-seen-before sculptures by six excellent artists exploring realism, verisimilitude, abstraction, and sheer weirdness. German Katharina Fritsch's turquoise-colored polyester St. Michael has the presence of a gorgeous gargoyle or ghost; Ellsworth Kelly's white-painted aluminum curve is a perfect combination of fact and fiction; Robert Gober's untitled apparition of what looks like an enlarged stick of butter and regular-size apples in a baby's crib with a thick wood floor left me speechless.
